

Site Director

Dr Conor Brady is a lecturer in Archaeology in the School of Humanities, Dundalk Institute of Technology. Conor graduated with an honours Bachelors degree in Archaeology & Early Irish History (1997) and earned his PhD in Archaeology from UCD (2007), completing his thesis on 'A Landscape Survey of the Newgrange Environs: Earlier Prehistoric Settlement at Brú na Bóinne, Co. Meath'. His research interests include Landscape archaeology, ploughzone archaeology, Neolithic period settlement, the archaeology of the Brú na Bóinne World Heritage Site and the Boyne Valley, lithic analysis, geophysical applications in archaeology, battlefield archaeology, industrial archaeology, sustainable landscape conservation and management, public archaeology, heritage and sustainability, heritage as an economic resource. Conor is a member of the Royal Irish Academy Committee for Archaeology.

